Policy Committee
February 2024 Finance Update

The Baldwin Public Library Board’s Finance Committee met on Monday, February 12 at 4:00pm in the Delos Board Room. Present were Frank Pisano, Danielle Rumple, Rebekah Craft and Jaclyn Miller.

- Public Comment - none
- Craft reported on the FY 2023-24 budget report after 7 months. Everything is tracking well and a large expenditure was made to PCI Dailey for Phase 3 costs.
- Review of Construction Budget
  - We will need to take additional funds from the trust this year, but the project cost has not increased; the initial approved cost was more than estimated last year.
  - We anticipate coming in under budget on furniture, Artpack sculpture installation, and engineering fees.
  - There will be two draws on the contingency for a secondary elevator panel – which is required by the State of Michigan elevator inspector - and a boiler drain in the new mechanical closet off the Rotary Room. Estimates will be available soon.
- Miller reviewed the Friends of BPL Expenditures. Miller noted that the in-library book sale numbers do not include any Venmo donations for book sale items
- Craft presented a preview of the FY 2024-25 budget.
  - Revenue is expected to be increase, and the library should be able to add around $671,000 to the fund balance.
  - Expenses may include an insurance stipend and payroll increases. Utilities will increase due to expanded square footage. Funds Balance - Beginning of Year

$2,498,443.24

Funds Balance - Current

$2,395,686.69

The fund balance should be not less than 25% of annual operating expenditures and not more than 35% of annual expenditures, except when the Library is building a fund balance in support of specific non-recurring projects.

Note: Of the $4,165,640 in Birmingham net tax revenue, $3,483,976 is for operating expenses, and $681,664 is for funding the Phase 3 expansion and renovation.
January 2024 Building Committee Report

The Baldwin Public Library Board’s Building Committee met on Monday, January 29 at 1:00 p.m. in the Jeanne Lloyd Room. Present were Missy Mark, Frank Pisano, Rebekah Craft, and Jaclyn Miller.

- Public comment: No members of the public were present.
- Phase 3 Budget update: The overall cost of the project has not changed, but there will need to be an additional withdrawal from the trust this year because the total project cost came in above the $3,277M budgeted for in FY2023-24. Once the actual amount is known, a budget amendment will be presented for a vote, most likely at the June board meeting.
- Phase 3 Café furniture
  - The outdoor chairs, tables, and umbrellas have already been ordered. The tables and chairs match those on the north terrace; the umbrellas are the same model as the umbrellas in Shain Park.
  - Indoor tables and chairs were discussed – Craft will order two sample chairs for comparison and evaluation for use.
- The construction plaque for lobby will feature the teams and board members involved in all three phases
- Bird Glass options: Craft presented three options. Craft will present her report at the February Board meeting. The Committee suggests placing a sample of the Feather Friendly product in one place for 12-18 months to see how it holds up, before pursuing the further remediation.
- Art Installation by Michael Andrews, with David Bloom and Laura Host – Snow Crash Nebula
• A butterfly bench has been donated to the library in memory of Elaine Henderson. This spring, the bench will be placed on the east end of the Littles Garden once the temporary ramp is removed.

• Teen Scene: Creating a new Teen space is first on the list after all the shelves are replaced at the end of Phase 3.

• Solar Panels: Craft and Miller are meeting with a representative from Michigan Solar Solutions to discuss installing solar panels on the library’s flat roofs. The representative has done some information gathering and fact finding on potential solutions based on our area, electricity use, and costs/savings.

• Next meeting to be decided at a later date.

The Baldwin Public Library (BPL) encourages gifts and donations, which will enhance library services. Monetary contributions are added to The Baldwin Public Library Trust for purchases beyond the means of the regular budget.

I. Gifts of Materials, Artwork, Furnishings, Technology, or Personal Property

A. Offers of gifts of materials for the collection shall be reviewed with the donor prior to acceptance. Gifts are accepted with the understanding that they become the property of BPL upon receipt and that BPL shall make all necessary decisions according to its Collection Development Policy as to their retention, placement, cataloging and other considerations relating to their use and disposition. BPL does not accept textbooks, books in poor physical condition, or used magazines. Materials such as books and other items may be donated in honor of a friend or relative. These items will be marked with a special plate.

B. While gifts of art and other collectibles are welcome, BPL reserves the right to determine the placement and display of these objects. The decision to accept the gift will be based on the suitability to BPL’s mission, and the availability of space for display. Such gifts are accepted only on the condition that the use and disposition are up to the discretion of the Library Trust Board and/or the Library Director. BPL may request that an artwork be accompanied by a current appraisal of value and may request evidence of artistic importance, merit of the work, and reputation of the artist. BPL, at its discretion, may also request from the donor evidence of provenance and present title to the artwork. A deed of gift, or similar document transferring sole and exclusive ownership of the artwork to BPL will be required.

C. Gifts of technological equipment shall be reviewed with the BPL Director or designee and may be accepted with the understanding that they become the property of BPL. The decision to accept the gift will be based on the suitability to BPL’s mission and need for the type of equipment offered.

Gifts of Money

- General gift funds – Unrestricted monetary gifts will be used at the discretion of BPL Trust Board to the best advantage of BPL. Restricted monetary gifts will be accepted on the condition that the specific use requested is consistent with the mission of BPL and the BPL Collection Development Policy.
Gifts of money to purchase tribute or memorial items are always welcome. A minimum of $25.00 is needed to purchase an item. These gifts will be expended for the designated purpose with appropriate recognition. Proper notification will be sent on receipt of the gift, in advance of the item being ordered.

- Endowment Funds – A named endowment fund may be established the continuing support of BPL. These funds are established in perpetuity, and the use of funds will be guided by the wishes of the donor with the annual income used in accordance with the fund restrictions. A minimum amount of $10,000.00 is needed to establish an Endowment Fund.

Those interested in establishing a fund should contact the BPL Director to discuss options. A minimum amount of $5,100.00 must be physically secured by BPL before the BPL Director recommends the establishment of the named Endowment Fund. The remainder must be pledged and received within five (5) years. In the event that the flow of funds agreed upon does not reach a minimum of $10,000 within five years, the named Endowment Fund shall be dissolved and the funds will be co-mingled with other BPL gift monies.

Sponsorships

BPL welcomes sponsorships of programs, projects and events from individuals and groups, including but not limited to businesses and organizations. Sponsorships will be accepted at the discretion of the BPL Director. Sponsorships and gift items will be formally acknowledged in a manner discussed and agreed upon by the BPL Director and donor, in the manner the donor wishes.

Appraisals for Tax Purposes

Neither the BPL Trust Board nor the BPL Director will assess or suggest a value for non-monetary gifts for income tax or other purposes. The letter of acknowledgment will not contain a statement of value for donated items. All donations to BPL are tax deductible and provide tax benefits to the fullest extent of state and federal law. BPL will provide a descriptive receipt upon request.

Gifts to Staff

Staff will not accept gifts of any kind from members of the public except for plants or edible gifts such as cookies, candy, etc., which can be placed in the department and shared with staff. All other gifts shall be refused or returned to sender except at the discretion of the BPL Director.

Role of Public Comment at Library Board Meetings: The Birmingham City Charter grants exclusive authority to the publicly elected Library Board to maintain and operate the Baldwin Public Library (BPL). Members of the public shall have a reasonable opportunity to comment on matters pending before the Library Board.

The agenda for any meeting of the Library Board will include a general comment period for any public comment on any subject relevant to BPL the Library.

The Board President or presiding officer will determine the order in which speakers will be recognized. Unless additional time is granted by the Board President or presiding officer at the beginning of the meeting before public comment begins, each person is allowed a maximum of three (3) minutes to speak. Speakers may not cede time to another speaker. Meeting participants may speak when specifically recognized by the presiding officer.

Public comments will be addressed to the Board. Personal attacks on Library Board members, staff members or members of the public will not be tolerated, nor will language that is considered offensive, harassing, or profane. Any person or persons judged by the Board to be disorderly or who do not follow the guidelines established by the Board will be asked to leave the premises.

The Board may or may not take action on any presented items. The Board President or other presiding officer may respond as appropriate and, for example, direct speakers to the appropriate staff member for assistance. Issues requiring possible action by the Board may be added to a future agenda. Issues that may need to be addressed by the administration will be duly noted.

Key Metrics & Strategic Plan Status Report

Action item updates and comparisons of actual statistics to projections are made on a quarterly basis—in the months of October, January, April, and July.

Programs & Services

Strategic goal: Adapt programs and services to meet the needs of the changing population

Acrylic Paint Pouring
On January 22, after doubling the size of the program to 45 participants, Mick Howey, Patricia Henricks, and Stuart Sturton conducted our first ever paint pouring program. Attendees received some basic instruction and had fun creating their own pieces to take home.

- Wanted to let you know that I had so much fun last night in the class. Thank you for all you did to prepare for it and for teaching it. Thanks to The Friends of the Library for the funding. - Linda C.
- Had a great time. Thank you – Ellen M.

DIY Snow Globes
On January 25, teens had the opportunity to create their own snow globes at the Library. During the preparation for the program, Teen Librarian Elisabeth Phou found this small figure that resembles BPD’s own Therapy K-9 Maple, and made this snow globe to give to the police department.

Love at First Line Display
Elisabeth Phou, Phoenix Nash, and Sinjin Green – along with a teen volunteer who has beautiful handwriting! - worked to create a display of covered books, encouraging folks to check them out, based solely on the first line of text. As an extra surprise, three books contained gift cards to Eli Tea. The books were available to check out beginning on February 1.

Mongers Chocolate program
On January 31 we had a full house for the session on chocolates with Monger’s Provisions. Zach discussed the “bean to bar” movement and provided samples for all attendees.

Seed Library Map
A new effort to make the Seed Libraries across the state better known and utilized has resulted in the creation of a map featuring known libraries. BPL is included on the map, alongside several neighboring libraries.
https://miseedlibrary.org/
Tax Forms
2023 Tax forms arrived on January 19 and patrons can collect them from the Adult Services area until May. If we do not have the printed copy, patrons can request individual forms be printed at the reference desk.

Winter Reading Challenge
Our winter reading challenge wrapped up on January 31, 2024. Participation was similar to last year’s challenge. We had:

- 115 registrants
- 62 challenge completions/Bingos
- 591 completed activities
- 45,269 minutes read

Three winners were selected at random from the completed Bingos – one from each age group – and awarded a gift card to Books A Million. Congratulations to:

- Youth - Ruby L.
- Teen - Lily R.
- Adult - Melissa R.

Facility

Strategic goal: Create a welcoming, safe, and accessible building that meets the needs of our staff and users.

Electronics Recycling

On January 24, Jamie Richards coordinated a recycling pickup to responsibly dispose of obsolete, broken, and expired computers, monitors, printers, projectors, batteries, and other electronic waste generated during library operation.

Michigan Solar Solutions Information meeting

On January 31, Craft and Miller met with Abe Bayha from Michigan Solar Solutions for an initial information gathering session about the possibility of adding solar panels to the flat roof sections of the Library. This project was mentioned during the long range planning meeting with the City of Birmingham, and Abe was able to provide the basics on what such a project would entail, as Craft and the Board are budget planning.

Water Bottle Refill Station Milestone

On January 30, the 40,000th water bottle was refilled at our station on the main floor by Susan Dion in Youth Services, who was so excited to see it change over that she grabbed a picture. We’re proud of this small but impactful effort at reducing single use plastic.

Diversity and Equity

Strategic goal: Provide and promote equitable and inclusive resources and opportunities for all populations

IDEA (Inclusion, Diversity, Equity, Access) Task Force

The group continues to meet monthly to accomplish the goals set forth by the Library Board. The Committee is working together to implement action items from the 2022-2025 Strategic Plan Action Plan.

The IDEA Task Force is starting a monthly discussion group for staff to navigate best practices in customer service and share tips for working with patrons. The first discussion will be held on March 4.

On March 6, the staff book club will be discussing Binti by Nnedi Okorafor as part of the quarterly DEI book club.

Project READY

The Youth Department continues to meet regularly to work through and discuss the Project READY curriculum. In February the group discussed Module 14: (In)equity in the Public School System. Next month, the group will be discussing (In)equity in Libraries.
Community Outreach and Partnerships

Strategic goal: Develop and strengthen BPL connections within the community.

Art Installation – Snow Crash Nebula

Local artist Michael C. Andrews, with support from David Bloom and Laura Whitesides Host, has installed a felt art installation along the east wall of the Youth Room. His installation is entitled “Snow Crash Nebula.” This display will include a virtual reality component and techno music compositions inspired by the installation and composed by local musicians.

Michael C. Andrews tapestries, sculptures, and animations taunt the categorizations of textile, cinema, and object. His hybrid approach to making is fueled by the desires and anxieties of a schizophrenic and body conscious culture. Exhibitions include MCA Chicago, Dan Devening Projects and Exhibitions in Chicago, IL, The Chicago Cultural Center, and PENELope in New York City. Michael C. Andrews is a full time faculty in the Fiber and Material Studies department at School of the Art Institute of Chicago (SAIC) as well as the Summer Academic Advisor at Ox-Bow School of the Arts and Artists Residency.
City of Birmingham
Craft has attended weekly City of Birmingham staff meetings. Miller submits content for the monthly and quarterly newsletter and Craft submits an update to the City Manager to be discussed as part of her report during the last Commission meeting of each month.

Beverly Hills
Miller submitted information to the Village of Beverly Hills for inclusion in its weekly email and monthly newsletter.

Bingham Farms
Miller submits monthly Board Meeting updates to the Library Liaison.

City of Bloomfield Hills
Miller submits monthly Board Meeting updates to the Library Liaison.

Birmingham Next
Rebekah Craft continues to host the Popular Reads book club on the first Monday of each month at 1:00 p.m. The group meets in a hybrid format at Next and on Zoom. Jaclyn Miller moderates the Library’s non-fiction book club, which meets virtually on the second Tuesday of every month at 10:00 a.m. Contact Rebekah.craft@baldwinlib.org to request the book and join the next discussion.

Birmingham Schools
• YS staff are presenting virtual book talks to 5th graders at Quarton Elementary.
• Birbery kicked off on February 9. This is a mock Newbery program for 6th to 8th graders in the Birmingham Public Schools. The students read 10 books and compete in quiz bowls at their school. The top 5 students from each school (Derby Middle, Berkshire Middle, and Birmingham Covington School) will come to BPL on Friday, May 10 to discuss the books and then vote for their favorite to win the Birbery (Birmingham Newbery). This year’s titles are:

Daisy Scout Troop Tour
On February 5, Youth Librarian Susan Dion welcomed Daisy Scout Troop 77929 for a story time and tour.

Friends of the Baldwin Public Library
The Friends of the BPL Board met on February 13 for their regular meeting. Their January lobby sales were $664, between cash and Venmo payments. During their meeting, they discussed the refresh of the sorting room, their recent volunteer training sessions, the upcoming 4th Saturday book sale, and set the annual meeting date for May 14. The group is also brainstorming ideas to increase membership.

Story Time Guild
On Thursday, February 15, Stephanie Klimmek presented the newest in children’s picture books good for reading aloud to members of the area Story Time Guild. She also shared new Adult books of interest as a bonus for the group. The STG shared a complimentary write-up in their membership newsletter:

Please join us in the Jeanne Lloyd Room at the Baldwin Public Library on Thursday, February 15th at 10 a.m.
Stephanie Klimmek, Director of Youth Services, will present:
WONDERFUL READ-ALOUDS!
STG members have always enjoyed Stephanie’s entertaining presentations on new read-aloud children’s books. She will be telling us about the latest award winning titles (Newbery, Caldecott, etc.) as well as sharing some adult titles to help you survive the rest of the winter in your coziest reading spot.

Student Representative
Birmingham resident and Cranbrook junior Kate Walter will be our 2024-2025 Student Representative to the Library Board. Kate has been a BPL user since she moved here from California at age 9, and fondly recalled spending time at our library. Kate has an interest in a community garden, and researching how our deselected items can be reallocated. In the meantime, she will also be assisting with our reestablishment of the Teen Scene at the completion of Phase 3. We look forward to working with her.

Marketing
Michelle Hollo continues to work with Jaclyn Miller designing projects and marketing materials for the Library, including:
- Learn.Connect.Discover newsletter drafts
- Youth Program posters and fliers
- Teen program posters and fliers
- Book Club posters and fliers
- Birbery publicity pieces
- Label samples for picture books

eNewsletters
Robert Stratton has compiled and distributed the Library’s four monthly eNewsletters (Adult Events, Teen Events, Youth Events). These newsletters promote upcoming programs and spotlight a library service each month.

Personnel and Organization
Strategic goal: Train, empower, and equip members of the organization to best support users and each other.

SHINE Committee
The SHINE committee have been coordinating fun events to carry us through the winter.

- Teams of staff from various departments participated in a 4-week step challenge. Congratulations to The Walk Ness Monsters: Phoenix Nash, Sinjin Green, Susan Dion, and Stuart Sturton on their 917,466 steps. Other fun team names included Walkin’ On Sunshine, Step It Up, Chips and Walkamoli, The Red Hot Chili Steppers, Not Fast, Just Furious
• Some staff were accidentally or on purpose dressed alike during Twin Week and we had Valentine’s Dress Up Week.
• The committee hosted an after hours game night in the Jeanne Lloyd Room.
• Staff enjoyed a hot chocolate bar in January.
• Staff were invited to create Tiny Art.
Staff Communications
An All Staff meeting was held January 31. We continue to meet monthly, after the Library Board meeting, to share updates with all attendees. Recordings of each meeting are sent to all staff.

Staff Anniversaries
Sofia Dabrowski, Substitute Adult Librarian, reached 2 years of service on February 6.
Jessica DeGrieck, Substitute Librarian, reached 1 year of service on February 19.
Carlton Elam, Circulation Assistant II, reached 4 years of services on February 3.
Theresa Hart, Circulation Assistant I, reached 28 years of service on February 12.
Suzanne Hathon, Adult Services Librarian, reached 1 year of service on February 1.
Dennis Kabel, Circulation Assistant I, reached 11 years of service on February 4.
Syntha Green, Youth Librarian, will reach 8 years of service on February 28.
Angela Shinozaki, Youth Librarian, reached 8 years of service on February 8.

Staffing Changes
We’re pleased to share that Wren Drisko will be our newest Library Assistant in the Access Services department. Wren is known throughout Baldwin for their joviality and nose-to-the-grindstone attitude when it comes to material check in and Paging. As a Library Assistant I, they will undoubtedly continue to provide quality service to our patrons; and leave an indelible impression on our public. Wren will still be doing some Paging for us, so expect to continue and see them out and about, as well as behind the desk.
We are in the process of hiring three new substitute librarians and are accepting applications for the position of weekend Page through Friday, March 1.

Volunteer Hours
62 volunteer hours were utilized in the month of January.

---

Financial Stability

Strategic goal: Maintain and improve financial health.

Craft continues to monitor both the Library’s budget and the performance of its Trust funds in order to ensure fiscal responsibility as we work to fully resume pre-COVID operations.

Description

A structural beam runs through the proposed shade area locations (as drawn on structural) which does not give enough clearance for the shade pocket as drawn (architecturally). Please advise if we are to build a pocket for these shades out of drywall and direct mount to the beam where they intersect.

Steve and Tyler examined this after the meeting and will be able to fit the blinds into the area.

Installation scheduled for week of 1/22.

 Foam insulation will be installed in the window frames to weatherproof the room. They will be secured in place so that they do not blow away after a large wind gust.

Description

- To complete the limestone option it would be around $22,500.00. We would need to have a meeting with MCD and the structural engineer to discuss attachment details as this is a bit different approach from the east side of the addition.

Limestone option has been selected as a maximum budget value. PCI Dailey will take steps necessary to reduce the cost impact of this change.

Has MCD discussed with structural engineer for meeting availability?

Shop drawings are completed and have been sent to MCD.

Description

1. It appears curved trim stainless steel was included in the rendering. Who suggested the zig zag line for the additional fee? Do they think it's purely aesthetic or will that trim be extra protection for the plaster? This was an idea that was discussed when looking at the quality of the concrete pour of the wall, as an alternate to hide more of the concrete. We asked for pricing for the alternate. At this point, we don’t think that we are going to suggest making any change.

The stainless steel trim will be about the width of a house key (1/16”).

2. Do they think the larger curved stainless steel version will protect the plaster better? The size of the trim piece has not increased, it is a screeed edge for the plasterer to finish to. How much wear and tear will it show? The stainless steel will be barely noticeable; only approximately 1/16" of it will be visible. Fingerprints? (speaking from experience of owning a stainless steel refrigerator with children) Fingerprints will not be seen on the stainless steel.

1. Are there still plans to have a railing down the middle of the stairs? Yes. Will that also be stainless steel? Just curious what material the railings will be? Yes, it will be brushed stainless steel.

1. What color will the stainless trim be in comparison to the wall and stairs? Silver/grey

1. I don't care for either stainless steel trim—do we need it (the edging) for function? Yes, it needs to be there for function. I think it detracts rather than adds to the design. Can you please ask that question (function)? I would be more inclined to prefer a concrete or other stone trim, but only if it was necessary. And then, if trim is part of the function, rather than aesthetics, could we use an edging out of stone/cement edge? The two stones look much more organic without trim and present a cohesive first impression if where the two meet is smooth. The trim needs to be bendable and create an edge to terminate the plaster to, over the concrete. There is no stone associated with the stainless steel trim. The trim is required for function to keep the plaster in place and separate from the concrete base. If we were to use stone, it would be too wide in width and too costly.

1. The stainless steel border on the stairs is there a way we could put as add/delete after we see the plaster on the ramp and stairs to see if we need anything there? Is there another material we could use that's less expensive and give it an attractive appearance than the metal? The stainless steel was originally specified and is included in the base price of the project. It is the best material for this application.

The architect has decided to stick with the original curve at no additional cost to the library.

1. How does the team like how things are turning out with the project? Are they pleased on the color of the cement now that it has dried? Did the planter color and height of the bench come out as planned? The MCD team is generally very happy with how the project is progressing. The color of the concrete will still be changing so it's difficult to make a call on that at this point. The planter color and height appear to be in conformance with the documents and with the original vision that was illustrated in the rendered design images. The project is turning out beautifully. Considering what a Swiss watch this project is, it is going a lot better than it could have been. As an example, the concrete company is removing the top three steps because they were not poured in a manner as high quality as the rest of the steps. They knew the steps looked incorrect, so they voluntarily are taking them out and replacing them at no extra charge. The cement color will continue to change over the years and with use. It's rich looking for concrete. Using concrete on this project was a creative, elegant, and cost effective finish for the flooring and stairs. The large "area rugs" align well inside and outside.

1. I know the timeline is a little behind because the cement. When do they think the project will be done? Weather has been an issue with the project. We are looking at completing the project at the end of March or early April.

1. I know it's difficult to determine costs that pop up and I'm worried about our contingency being depleted and having to dip into the trust to cover overages. I know in past meetings MCD & PCI talked to you about overages and they think the big things are behind us but we seem to have new costs arise every month eating away at the contingency. Are these costs coming up because of form over function? In our opinion, any additional costs are associated with addressing certain unforeseen items and making the project the absolute best it can be, within the budget. We have roughly $46,000 in contingency and we haven't started the interior and curtain wall. I'm concerned the project is going to be over budget.

We are in a pretty good spot with the remaining amount in the contingency. PCI Dailey is comfortable with it. There are allowances to cover other big issues that may pop up.

1. Was the lighting in the new circulation office fixed and did we pay out the contingency to fix the problem? An alternative lighting plan has been prepared for the contractor to provide pricing. PCI Dailey is gathering pricing on this. New lighting will help the office to have more diffused lighting for tasks.

1. Anything special Steve or Tyler would like to comment on their perspective on how the project is going? The MCD team is generally very happy with how the project is progressing. PCI Dailey is also happy with how the project is progressing.

(Additional parts on order.)

Due to the size constraints in the ceiling after relocating a necessary plumbing drain, the pocket for housing the roller needs to be smaller. PCID will place a metal fascia piece in place of the housing to conceal the shade. There will be a credit for not using the housing and there will be a deduct for adding the metal fascia piece. These should just about even each other out.

Group reviewed the updated drawings from MCD. The State Elevator Inspector is requiring that a separate elevator disconnect panel installed next to the main elevator disconnect. This was not required by code when the elevator was approved last June, but the State Inspector will not approve the new elevator without this additional panel. It will be installed on the wall between the elevator and the new Hot Picks Location. The panel will be installed over a new in-wall book drop. The additions to the contingency are still being gathered, but it will cost around $8-10,000 for electrical and framing.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS
INTRODUCTION
At the request of the Library Board, I am presenting the research, history, and various options for mitigating the bird strikes of the Library’s glass windows in the Youth Room and in the new front entrance addition.

Since the Youth Addition was built in 2020, staff members have relayed the following statistics about bird collisions with Library windows:
- Number of times a staff member has heard a bird strike a window while working: 4
- Number of birds found dead around the building by staff members: 17
- Number of birds that patrons have found outside the building and reported to staff: 6

This averages to about 9 dead birds being discovered and reported by staff or patrons per year.

BACKGROUND
In 2019, during the construction of the Youth Room addition, a community member approached Library Director Doug Koschik to request that bird safe glass measures be installed on the new glass curtain wall. At the time, the Building Committee researched various options, including a glass manufacturing process that acid etched markings into glass to make the glass more visible to birds. Due to budget constraints, no anti-collision measures were used.

The Library had every intention of adding bird safety anti-collision measures to the glass on the Phase 3 addition when it began planning the project in 2021-2022. However, due to budget constraints, the project was value-engineered and anti-collision measures were removed from the project in 2022.

At the inquiry of a community member and at the direction of the Library Board, I have looked into several remediation options for the Library’s windows.

FISCAL IMPACT
I have received five quotes for installation of protective film on the outside surface of all windows in the Youth Room addition and the Front Entrance Addition.

Product: Solyx
- Installed by Eastern Solar Glass - $48,589.00
- Installed by Michigan Glass Coatings - $53,331.00
Product: Feather Friendly
- Installed by National Glazing Solutions - $30,299.10
- Installed by Eastern Solar Glass - $42,356.00

Product: CollidEscape
- Installed by Bierte, Inc. - $27,914.60

The matrix below compares the three products that looked into installing. The full quotes are included in the attachments to this memo.

| Sample Description | Cast vinyl markers
Non-removable adhesive
Dry Application
Will not discolor, shrink, delaminate
No sealing necessary, no seam
15+ years of durability
Feather Friendly doesn't have the tiny perforations for dirt to get into and the freeze/thaw cycle to impact. Round FF dots are my preferred option since they don't even have corners | Polyester film covers entire surface. Polyester is dimensionally stable, does not stretch, provides optical clarity
Removable adhesive
Wet Application
Can discolor, peel, crack, delaminate
Must be edge sealed, possibility of seam
7 years of durability | Protected by strong ultraviolet inhibitors, guaranteeing that the films will not discolor over time. These additives can actually cause the material to chalk, similar to house paint, when left up for 10+ years. 10 year lifespan |

<td>Feather Friendly rep says: Full film like CollidEscape Perf or Solyx full film has a limited lifespan. Printed film like Solyx should be edge-sealed as well. Water and dirt can get in the open holes and deteriorate the film, with water getting beneath the film and lifting it.</td>

<td>I am not a big fan of the Solyx for two reasons, I have used it and it doesn’t last and age well. I don’t like the vertical stripes, I think the horizontal stripes are better on the eyes.</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comments from Heidi Trudell, Big Bend Nature</td>
<td>Feather Friendly doesn’t have the tiny perforations for dirt to get into and the freeze/thaw cycle to impact. Round FF dots are my preferred option since they don’t even have corners</td>
<td>Seconding the horizontal stripes for the sake of spacing as well as visual comfort; if vertical stripes are used along walkways, it can cause a flickering in your peripheral vision which depending on sensitivity for folks may trigger migraines or seizures.</td>
<td>If you head down to the Ottawa NWR building just east of Toledo, you can see that the CollidEscape is peeling on those windows and those have been up less than 10 years</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

After researching these three products, reviewing the life expectancy, warranty, and removal instructions, and hearing reviews from Bonnie Van Dam, Curator of Birds at the Detroit Zoological Society, and Heidi Trudell, Washtenaw Safe Passage Coordinator, the one thing that is clear is that the technology for bird collision remediation is constantly improving.

Because of this, I recommend that the Library Board approve a sample installation of the Feather Friendly product on one panel of windows for a test period of 12-18 months. This would enable us to see how the product holds up during a full year of weather conditions and to see how our window cleaning company’s products interact with the film. Spending $30,000 on a product that may potentially only last 5-7 years is a large investment and we owe it to taxpayers to research the feasibility of any product we select before proceeding with an extensive installation of any anti-collision measure.

Should the testing period for the Feather Friendly product prove successful, the Library Board would then need to vote on whether or not to treat all windows with this product. Money is earmarked in the FY 2026-27 budget to install this product on the windows in the Youth Room addition and Front Entrance addition.

SUSTAINABILITY
The Missouri Department of Conservation lists the many reasons why caring about birds is important to our environment.

_Birds Keep Our Ecosystems Running Smoothly_
- Birds eat insect pests that would otherwise decimate agricultural crops, gardens, and other vegetation. Birds eat 400–500 tons of insects per year.
- Birds like crows and vultures scavenge carcasses, reducing the spread of diseases such as rabies and distemper.
- Birds disperse seeds, spreading plants into new areas.
- Birds such as hummingbirds help pollinate plants.
- Birds like hawks and owls help keep the mouse and rat population in check.
- Birds eat millions of mosquitoes and other biting insects each year.

By installing anti-collision measures on the Library’s windows, we would demonstrate Baldwin’s dedication to sustainability and the importance of birds to our ecosystem.

SUMMARY
The Feather Friendly product has received the best reviews from local experts, has held up well in Michigan conditions in other local installations, and is reasonably priced compared to CollidEscape and Solyx. I recommend that the Board approves the installation of this product on one section of windows for a test period of one year. During the test year, library staff will also make a daily walkthrough of the exterior windows to search for evidence of bird strikes. At the end of the test period, the Library Board will review the evidence of bird strikes and the Feather Friendly wear and tear before determining whether or not to proceed with the full installation of this product.

REF: Baldwin Public Library Bird Divert Window Film Installation

We will supply all labor and material to install Solyx Bird Safety Film or Feather Friendly Bird Strike Film on mutually agreed upon dates and times. The film selected will be installed onto a total of 107 glass panels as requested. Samples of the films specified will be supplied upon request. Pricing does not include removal of any existing film. The film chosen will be installed by skilled technicians during normal working hours. Clear access to the glass will need to be provided. We would like to be scheduled as late in the project as possible to reduce trade interference and contamination being trapped under the film. Any change in film selection, scope of work, or schedule could result in the need for a proposal change. We will need to be made aware of any job specific training and/or testing and that could result in an add to this proposal.

Total Project Supplied & Installed (Phase 3): Solyx: $14,744.00. | Feather Friendly: $12,854.00.

If I can be of any further assistance, or if you would like to schedule this installation, please do not hesitate to contact me at your earliest convenience.

Kind regards,

Anthony D’Urso

EMBRACING CHANGE: BALDWIN'S NEW CHAPTER BEGINS

After nine months of construction and almost nine years of planning and renovations, our three phase building improvement plan is nearly complete! I cannot wait to welcome you all at our upcoming Library Open House and Dedication on Saturday, May 18.

Stop by to see the new space, hear remarks from the library board, watch the unveiling of our new public art installation by Wendy Popko, listen to live music, and enjoy appetizers and sweet treats. The event will take place from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m., with brief remarks at 1:30 p.m. Weather permitting, we'll have our floor to ceiling doors open to our updated terrace so that visitors can enjoy our new indoor/outdoor public space.

I’d like to thank you for your patience with and enthusiasm for all of the improvements made to this building since embarking on this project in 2015. Our resilient team has done an excellent job providing library services throughout each of our projects with their calm and friendly demeanor. And, we’d be nowhere without our dedicated patrons and supporters who have stuck with us along the way. It’s no small feat considering the upheaval, massive movement of our collections (and front door!), and chaos and noise that accompanies any sort of construction.

This year, we have launched our 25 books in 52 weeks campaign. You can join in the challenge online at baldwinlib.beanstack.org. Did you know that an average American adult reads 12.6 books per year and 52% of American adults did not read a single book last year? We encourage Baldwin users of all ages to participate and we’re here to help you find a book that works for you, whether it’s an audiobook, graphic novel, biography, beach read, thriller, or classic novel. If you prefer reading magazines, we’re happy to announce that we just added PressReader to our digital offerings. PressReader offers over 7,000 digital subscriptions to newspapers and magazines. Find out more at baldwinlib.org/emagazines/.

If you haven’t stopped by the library since construction began last summer, I hope that you’ll take a look at our upcoming programs, visit our Idea Lab, or stop in to pick out a new item to check out. We’re excited to finally launch our new Library of Things collection once the Merrill Street entrance reopens. You can check out a variety of tools and equipment to test out or to borrow temporarily. In the spirit of sustainability, we want you to help you save money or storage space as we make these resources available for all community members to use.

We have something for everyone at Baldwin and we hope to see you here soon!

Name: Kate Walter
Preferred Name: Kate

Zip Code: 48009

Cell phone:

School:
Grade: Junior
Age:

What school activities and/or classes have you participated in which would qualify you to serve as the Student Representative?

I am an officer in both my school's Photography and Leaders in the Environment club (as well as a Varsity diver, JV sailor, and research club/Science Olympiad participant) so I have lots of experience in leadership positions and know how to balance my responsibilities.

Please list your involvement in non-school activities:

I tutor kids every Saturday at the BPS Saturday School, which has given me experience with outreach/working with others.

What personal skills and characteristics do you possess that would make you a good representative?

As stated above, I possess leadership, communication, and organizational skills that would make me perfect for this position. I am also highly motivated & disciplined.

What ideas do you have to encourage more teen participation at Library events?

I believe that BPL's social media accounts can be utilized more to bring attention to teen events (ex: making a specific BPL Teen account online posts more on teens or related events I feel to gain inspiration...etc...etc).
Jaclyn Miller
Baldwin Library
Birmingham, MI, 48009

Dear Ms. Miller,

I am pleased to write a letter of recommendation for Kate Walter as a student representative to the Baldwin Library Board. I have had the pleasure of knowing Kate for the last 2 months as a Cranbrook Kigwood Student in my AP Biology class. I started teaching the AP Biology class several weeks into the school year, Kate was incredibly helpful getting me caught up on the class and what they had been doing. Kate is a great student, she is punctual, attentive to her work, has high expectations of herself and is a good support for other students. Kate would be an excellent addition bringing a fresh perspective to Baldwin Library Board.

Respectfully

Claudia Foerg
Science Faculty
Cranbrook Kingswood Schools
To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to recommend Kate Walter for a student representative position on your library board.

I am Scott McHugh. I have been coaching high school, middle school and club diving for approximately 25 years in southeast Michigan. Throughout the years I have had a number of divers that rise above and develop into well rounded students, athletes, teammates, and community members. Kate Walter has worked hard for her accomplishments and risen to the top both academically and as a member of our diving program at Cranbrook Kingswood high school.

I have had the opportunity to coach Kate for about the last 2 years. She has done an excellent job training and improving her diving skills, building team unity, and managing a rigorous academic workload. She has also been involved in a leadership program that is designed to guide our athletes to be great team leaders.

Kate has an amazing work ethic. She has shown throughout the training process that she is able to maintain a positive outlook and deal with the ups and downs of learning new skills that will improve her performance. She is very reliable, organized and a great communicator. These traits have been a tremendous asset to our team. She makes sure her team is informed and prepared for the day to day requirements as well as the additional team building activities.

Kate is passionate about being a great person and it reflects in her ability to be positive and committed to anything she takes on. I think she would be a great candidate for a role on your board.

Sincerely,
Scott McHugh
BPL Service Project Ideas:

- Community Garden:

  In collaboration with BPL's seed library, I propose a community garden on library grounds (possibly on back patio). This garden would be community tended & harvested using an honors system, teaching children about plant life cycles, food growth, sustainability, and cooperation. This project would not only further BPL's mission of education in a new hands-on way, but it would also promote community involvement in the library.

- Book Donations:

  Baldwin Public Library receives more support than most libraries in the country. Many libraries and schools around Michigan are severely underfunded, and would benefit from a donation of BPL's surplus collection or of books collected at a book drive the library could host. BPL has always been committed to making books accessible to our community, and through this project could extend its reach.

* Both of these projects would be cost-effective, but possible fundraising could include auctions, book sales, or BPL merchandise sales (ex: T-Shirts, tote bags, etc.).
Library Advocacy

The American Library Association Council approved five new Core Values that focus on access, equity, intellectual freedom and privacy, the public good, and sustainability. ALA overwhelmingly approved the new Core Values at its meeting Jan. 21, 2024, at LibLearnX, and they went into effect immediately.

Here are the five Core Values, with their descriptions:

Access: Access provides opportunities for everyone in the community to obtain library resources and services with minimal disruption. Library workers create systems that ensure members of their community can freely access the information they need for learning, growth, and empowerment regardless of technology, format, or delivery methods.

Equity: Library workers play a crucial role in fostering equity by actively working to dismantle barriers and create spaces that are accessible, welcoming, and beneficial for all. This is accomplished by recognizing and addressing systemic barriers, biases, and inequalities to create inclusive library environments where everyone can benefit from the library’s offerings and services.

Intellectual Freedom and Privacy: Intellectual freedom empowers people to think for themselves and to make informed decisions while respecting each individual’s dignity and independence. Library workers encourage people to cultivate curiosity and form ideas by questioning the world and accessing information from diverse viewpoints and formats without restrictions or censorship. The right to privacy is a crucial safeguard to this freedom, ensuring everyone has the right to develop their thoughts and opinions free of surveillance.

Public Good: Public good is working to improve society and protect the rights to education, literacy, and intellectual freedom. Libraries are an essential public good and are fundamental institutions in democratic societies. Library workers provide the highest service levels to create informed, connected, educated, and empowered communities.

Sustainability: Sustainability means making choices that are good for the environment, make sense economically, and treat everyone equitably. Sustainable choices preserve physical and digital resources and keep services useful now and into the future. By supporting climate resiliency, library workers create thriving communities and care for our common good for a better tomorrow.

Baldwin’s Core Values:
- Intellectual Freedom
- Equitable and Inclusive Access
- Education and Lifelong Learning
- Innovation
- Welcoming Environment
- Integrity
- Collaboration
- Commitment to Excellence

As we start to work on our 2025-2028 strategic plan, the board should consider potentially adopting the five core values set forth by the ALA.

Library of Michigan Announces
2024 Michigan Notable Books

Published on 8 January, 2024 | Lansing

LANSING – The Library of Michigan is pleased to announce the 2024 Michigan Notable Book list. This year’s list of 20 titles reflects the rich stories and culture of our state.

The celebrated books encompass the entire Great Lakes basin, to take readers from Sugar Island near the Soo to the cherry orchards of Traverse City, and across the vibrant communities of Metro Detroit.

Each year, the Michigan Notable Books (MNB) list features 20 books, published during the previous calendar year, which are about the Great Lakes, or set in Michigan or the Great Lakes, or written by a Michigan author. Selections include a variety of genres, both fiction and nonfiction, that appeal to many audiences and explore topics and issues close to the hearts of Michigan residents. This latest list continues that tradition with exploring the fascinating lives of historic women leaders on Mackinac Island; examining the struggle for self-identity and acceptance; celebrating the creativity of Michigan artists across diverse mediums; and more.

MNB began as part of the 1991 Michigan Week celebration, designed to pay tribute and draw attention to the many people, places, and things that identify Michigan life as unique and vibrant.

"Michigan truly is a mosaic of inspiration for writers," said State Librarian Randy Riley. "Each MNB selection offers a unique touchpoint into the rich stories and beautiful landscape of our great state. Everyone will find something of interest that speaks to the voices and experiences of what it means to be a Michigander."

Michigan’s State Superintendent Dr. Michael Rice said: “We grow in our lives when we open our eyes and minds to the rich experiences of others through fiction and nonfiction. This year’s Michigan Notable Books provide opportunity for young and old alike to bring knowledge and perspective into their lives about what others have seen and lived. Books should be mirrors that reflect our own lives, as well as windows for us to see others.”

This year’s MNB selection committee includes representatives from the Library of Michigan; Bath Township Public Library; Clinton-Macomb District Library; Capital Area District Libraries; Detroit Public Library; Lansing City Pulse newspaper; Library of Michigan Foundation; Michigan Center for the Book; Michigan Department of Education; Michigan Humanities; University of Michigan Library; and Wayne State University.

The 2024 MNB books and authors will be honored at the annual Night for Notables reception on Saturday, April 20, 2024 at the Library of Michigan, with two-time Michigan Notable Books honoree Stephen Mack Jones presenting as the keynote speaker. Participating authors will travel to libraries across the state on the Michigan Notable Books authors tour, to share their experiences and engage with local communities. Many also engage in the Authors Conversations video series, in which viewers can explore the backgrounds of the authors, uncover authors’ creative processes, and hear readings from book selections.

The Michigan Notable Books program is sponsored in part by the Library of Michigan Foundation and Michigan Humanities.

For more information or questions about the Michigan Notable Books program, contact the Library of Michigan at 517-335-1477, visit www.Michigan.gov/NotableBooks, or email Michigan-Notable-Books@michigan.gov.

2024 Michigan Notable Books

The All-American by Susie Finkbeiner - Revell
In this 1950s coming-of-age story, two sisters are left reeling when their father is accused of being a member of the Communist Party. Bertha finds a haven with the All-American Girls Baseball League. Flossie finds herself in an unexpected friendship. Both are about to discover how much good there is in the world—even in the hardest of circumstances.

Cinema Ann Arbor: How Campus Rebels Forged a Singular Film Culture by Frank Uhle – University of Michigan Press/Fifth Avenue Press
Delving into almost 100 years of rarely glimpsed history, Frank Uhle melds interviews with 80 key people, deep archival research, and over 400 mostly unseen images into a vivid account of just how the history of motion pictures and the history of Ann Arbor—and the University of Michigan—are intertwined. Told with the urgency and exquisite detail only available to an active, decades-long participant in Ann Arbor’s film culture, Cinema Ann Arbor uncovers unexpected and essential stories of the university’s film societies and the campus rebels who ran them.

A Cold, Hard Prayer by John Smolens – MSU Press
In 1924, an orphan train passes through the Midwest, and Mercy, a teenage girl of mixed race, and a boy nicknamed Rope, who lost fingers in a factory accident, become virtual prisoners of Harlan and Estelle Nau. After facing abuse, Mercy and Rope flee, making an arduous journey into sparsely populated northern Michigan, where Mercy believes she will find her aunt. Resolute and intrepid, Mercy and Rope develop a bond of mutual trust that helps them navigate a stark American landscape shaped by prejudice, hypocrisy, and fear.

Dearborn: Stories by Ghassan Zeineddine – Tin House Books
Spanning several decades, Ghassan Zeineddine’s debut collection examines the diverse range and complexities of the Arab American community in Dearborn. In 10 tragicomic stories, Zeineddine explores themes of identity, generational conflicts, war trauma, migration, sexuality, queerness, home and belonging, and more. By turns wildly funny, incisive, and deeply moving, Dearborn introduces readers to an arresting new voice in contemporary fiction and invites us all to consider what it means to be part of a place and community, and how it is that we help one another survive.

Enough to Lose by R.S. Deeren – Wayne State University Press
In nine captivating short stories, R.S. Deeren presents a vivid portrait of life in the rural Thumb region of Michigan. With unflinching empathy, Deeren weaves together the colorful lives of landscapers, hunters, artists, parolees, retirees, and entrepreneurs, characters who reckon with their relationship to this unique slice of Michigan. Deeren artfully illustrates the brutal realities of working-class rural life that are punctuated by moments of beauty, humor, and resilience.
Everything I Learned, I Learned in a Chinese Restaurant: A Memoir by Curtis Chin – Little, Brown and Company
1980s Detroit was a volatile place to live, but above the fray stood a safe haven: Chung’s Cantonese Cuisine, where anyone could sit down for a warm, home-cooked meal. Here was where, surrounded by his multigenerational family, filmmaker and activist Curtis Chin came of age; where he learned to embrace his identity as a gay ABC, or American-born Chinese; where he navigated the divided city’s spiraling misfortunes; and where—between helpings of almond boneless chicken, sweet-and-sour pork, and some of his own, less-savory culinary concoctions—he realized just how much he had to offer to the world, to his beloved family, and to himself.

Everything is Just Beginning: A Novel by Erin Bartels - Revell
Michael Sullivan is a talented lyricist and a decent guitarist, but since he was kicked out of his band (and his apartment), he's not sure he'll ever get a record deal. Living with his loser uncle in a beat-up trailer and working a dead-end job, Michael has little reason to hope for a better future. On the effervescent night of December 31, 1989—as the Berlin Wall is coming down, the Soviet Union is inching toward democracy, and anything seems possible—Michael will cross paths with the accomplished and enigmatic young heir to a fading musical dynasty, forever altering both of their futures.

Girls and Their Monsters: The Genain Quadruplets and the Making of Madness in America by Audrey Clare Farley – Grand Central Publishing
This intimate and compassionate portrait chronicles the extraordinary lives of the pseudonymous Genain quadruplets from Lansing as well as the lead psychologist who studied them to understand the cause of their schizophrenia. Exposing the harrowing violence they experienced, and its psychological and political consequences to them and our society at large.

Great Women of Mackinac, 1800–1950 tells the dramatic history of 13 women leaders on Mackinac Island in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Their linked visions of family and community define this beautiful island in the western Great Lakes. In this collective biography, author and Mackinac Island resident Melissa Croghan reveals how central they were to the history and literature of Mackinac.

In the Upper Country: A Novel by Kai Thomas – Viking
The fates of two unforgettable women—one just beginning a journey of reckoning and self-discovery and the other completing her life's last vital act—intertwine at the terminus of the Underground Railroad. Traveling along the path of the Underground Railroad from Virginia to Michigan, from the Indigenous nations around the Great Lakes, to the Black refugee communities of Canada, In the Upper Country weaves together unlikely stories of love, survival, and familial upheaval that map the interconnected history of the peoples of North America in an entirely new and resonant way.

In Making Art in Prison: Survival and Resistance, Janie Paul introduces readers to the culture and aesthetics of prison art communities, and shares heart-wrenching, poignant, and often surprisingly humorous artists’ narratives. These powerful stories and images upend the manufactured stereotypes of those living in prison, imparting a real human dimension—a critical step in the movement to end mass incarceration.

Darkly comic, tautly paced, and full of surprises, My Murder is a devour-in-one-sitting, clever twist on the classic thriller.

For many Americans, President Gerald Ford was the genial accident of history who controversially pardoned his Watergate-tarnished predecessor, presided over the fall of Saigon, and became a punching bag on Saturday Night Live. Libraries offering kayaks, 3D printers

Going beyond books, they aim to attract new patrons

Libraries across Michigan are no longer just about books, magazines, movies and drag-queen story times.

Library patrons can check out kayaks and canoes from a library in the Upper Peninsula, or snowshoes from the Clinton-Macomb Public Library. Then there’s the sewing machine at the Ferndale Area District Library, or board games and vinyl records at the Royal Oak Public Library.

Libraries call these their Libraries of Things, and their collections often include tools, seeds, musical instruments, board games, pots and pans, and kits for candle-making, jewelry-making, canning — even hunting down Big Foot or ghosts. (Those last two kits are available from the Clinton-Macomb Public Library.)

“Your library card is the smartest card in your wallet,” according to a brochure about the Novi Public Library.

The Novi library, on 10 Mile Road, does not have a library of things, but it does have a collection of magnifying equipment for checkout. Displayed near the large-print book collection, Novi offers hand-held magnifiers — helpful for reading prescriptions, lists of ingredients, thermostats and price tags, and stand magnifiers — for those with tremors or who aren’t strong enough to hold a hand-held instrument for any length of time.

Many libraries also have “maker spaces” with three-dimensional printers, embroidery machines, laser cutters and other equipment. They can convert family photos and slides into a digital format, and in the case of the Baldwin Public Library, build a scale model of an ocean liner, embroider linens, or engrave wine glasses or a cheese board.

Maker spaces, art collections

Staff at the Idea Lab inside the Baldwin library in Birmingham were able to use their 3D printer to build a piece of a kitchen stove that had broken off, saving the owner the cost of a new appliance, said associate director Jacy Miller.

Librarians say the expansion to Libraries of Things, maker spaces and other amenities, such as Novi’s Read-a-Latte Café (serves Starbucks) and its art collection, including 1,000 tiles that depict the story of the universe from the beginning, is all about staying relevant.

But there’s another benefit: the planet. Why buy a cake pan that will be used just once, then tossed and destined for a landfill, when you can check one out from the library? The collections also allow would-be musicians to try a new instrument before investing in one, or do-it-yourselfers the tools needed for an odd job around the house. And the creative kits in Novi allow library patrons the chance to try a new hobby — calligraphy or macrame — while they are in the building.

One of the best deals may be the four kayaks and three canoes that can be checked out for a day or two from the DeTour Area Schools and Public Library. Summer visitors to the community on Lake Huron in the far eastern corner of the Upper Peninsula can get one of these watercraft with a seasonal library card that costs $25 — and all but $5 of that is refunded if everything is returned, said Lisa Wasch, district director for the Superior District Library, a network of eight libraries on the east side of the Upper Peninsula.

Rachel Al-Zubaidi smiles as she looks through the Things to Go section inside the Clinton-Macomb Public Library in Clinton Township on Tuesday. Most items can be checked out for two weeks, and some can be reserved. Photos by David Rodriguez-Muñoz/Detroit Free Press.

She said Royal Oak allows homeless people to rest in the library.

Library innovations extend to the Braille and Talking Book Library, a nationwide network of libraries originally set up in 1891 for veterans who were blinded in World War I. One of the latest additions is a Braille e-reader. Available in Michigan since April 2023, the device allows users to read in Braille, as opposed to listening to an audiobook, and holds hundreds of Braille books, said Scott North, manager of the Braille and Talking Book Library in Lan-
“More and more people are realizing how much a library card can really offer a user,” said Jeff Milo, marketing coordinator for the Ferndale Area District Library.

The Royal Oak Public Library’s board games, puzzles, vinyl records and record players are especially popular, said director Sandy Irwin.

Patrons, she said, “love that crackling sound when you set the needle down on the record. From beginning to end, you’re getting the whole experience when listening to vinyl.”

Wi-Fi hot spots and giant TVs

At the Clinton-Macomb Public Library, the Library of Things collection is mostly displayed on the second floor of the main library, on Romeo Plank in Clinton Township. One of the most popular items is Wi-Fi hot spots that can be borrowed and used anywhere in the continental U.S., convenient for vacationing families. But the wait can be long. The library also offers a party kit with a projector and a giant flat-screen TV for a movie night in your backyard. Most items can be checked out for two weeks, and some can be reserved.

Policies on holds, checkout lengths and damaged returns vary from library to library. Beyond their libraries of things and maker spaces, public libraries offer programs in their communities, such as the Ferndale library’s movie trivia night, a book club that meets in a local brewery and a puzzle tournament at yet another brewery.

“No one needs a library card to attend one of our events,” said Milo, of the Ferndale Area District Library.

And don’t forget about the librarians themselves — information specialists who can sort through confusing or contradictory information and “check out the facts,” Milo said.

“We are here to help you get good, verified information,” Irwin said. And it’s all free — the fact-checking, the access to newspapers that charge to view stories, access to a computer itself, or just a place to sit and do a puzzle or read a magazine.

A Bigfoot Tracking kit sits near the Things to Go section inside the Clinton-Macomb Public Library in Clinton Township on Tuesday. Many libraries are offering a variety of items that can be checked out, including kayaks and more, as well as innovative programs.

A karaoke machine sits in the Things to Go section inside the Clinton-Macomb Public Library in Clinton Township on Tuesday. The karaoke machine is one of the dozens of items available at the library. The library also offers a party kit with a projector and a giant flat-screen TV.

Debbie Mikula, executive director of the Michigan Library Association, said libraries began moving beyond lending books at least a decade ago, evolving along with the rest of the world. But they also remain “community spaces, places to study, read and learn something new.”

“As the world turns, so do libraries,” she said. She said libraries are one of the last public places where people can connect with others, alongside fireplaces and in lounge chairs, no longer just at desks or tables.

“We’re not your Grandma’s library anymore,” Waskin said. “We’re beyond books.”

Bloomfield Township Public Library seeks millage renewal

BY MARY BETH ALMOND
malmond@andgnews.com

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Bloomfield Township Public Library plans to ask voters to approve a millage renewal in February that officials say would keep the library on solid financial footing.

On the Feb. 27 presidential primary ballot, Bloomfield Township residents will be asked to consider renewing the library’s existing millage rate, which Library Director Tera Moon said would allow the library to maintain its current level of funding.

The library — which serves the 44,235 residents of Bloomfield Township with resources, technology, and support for all ages — is supported by three separate millage rates, two that are levied in perpetuity and one that expires at the end of 2023.

The Feb. 27 proposal will ask Bloomfield Township voters to consider renewing the 2023 expiring millage at the current rate of 0.5047 mill for 10 years.

“That millage accounts for 27% of our current revenue, so it’s really important to the library operations,” Moon explained.

Voters approved a 10-year levy of 0.5410 mill in 2014. Moon said the current rate of 0.5047 mill is a result of Headlee rollbacks. The renewal, she added, will not increase current tax payments and would continue to cost the average taxpayer approximately $151 per year on a home with a taxable value of $300,000.

Taxpayers, she added, will see a lower tax bill from the library in 2024 as a 20-year bond payment for a 2008 building improvements project is now paid off.

“There were bonds that were sold 20 years ago in order to do the building improvement project for the library, the way it is now, and that is expiring as well, so voters are going to see a reduction in their tax bill in terms of the library this year, no matter what,” she said.

If the millage renewal passes, the library will work to achieve the goals of the 2023-2025 strategic plan, which Moon said all focus on making the library “as inclusive and excellent as possible” for residents. The funding, she explained, would allow the library to retain current service levels, hours and staffing; maintain and grow up-to-date collections of books and media; expand technology and digital resources; reimage library spaces; continue offering a variety of library programming; and repair and maintain its building and grounds, including to the roof and lower level.

“Our building is 15 years old now, and parts of it are going on 60 years old, so there are always repairs and renovations that need to be made,” she explained. “Our parking lot’s not in the greatest shape. We have some roofing problems. We have a flooding problem on our lower level that we have been trying to tackle for many, many years — so there are many building maintenance needs that we have.”

If the millage renewal fails, Moon said the library would have to make “serious cuts to hours, services, staffing and programming.” She said that could potentially mean fewer programs for children and adults, limited building improvements, less access to new technology and digital resources and limited collections.

People can learn more about the millage renewal proposal during two upcoming public informational sessions at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Feb. 15 at the library. All are welcome, and no registration is required to attend the informational sessions.

“As someone who lives in the township and is raising a family in the township, the library is so much more than just a place where we check out books — it’s a place where we meet; we’ve had playdates there; and lately, it’s become a place where people charge their phones when there’s a power outage. We don’t have any parks in the township, so it really is a community hub for so many people, so it is such an important part of our community for people of all ages,” said Library Board President Dani Gillman.

“I feel like the library is such a special place, because everybody is welcome and everybody has the same access to all of what is offered in the library no matter what you look like, what’s in your wallet, what language you speak, and that is such a special thing.”

More information about the millage renewal proposal can be found at btpl.org/millage-renewal.

From pickleball to podcasts: Sterling Heights Library launches new collection of, well, things

Published on 18 January, 2024 | MJ Galbraith

What’s happening: Ask just about any librarian and they’ll tell you that a library has a lot more to offer than its books – as great as they are in and of themselves, of course. But the Sterling Heights Public Library has announced yet another reason to visit in 2024, a new collection called the Library of Things; or LoT, for short.

What it is: The Library of Things is, well, just that. It’s a collection of both everyday and special items that might not be readily available to most library cardholders – but now they are, and for up to one week at a time, too. Highlights include a pickleball kit, portable projector, Meta Quest, document/photo scanner, telescope, building blocks, metal detector, weaving kit, indoor air quality monitor, engraving pen, contour gauge, podcast production studio, phone camera lens kit, and more.
What they're saying: "These items are meant to empower our community members to explore, learn, and create in innovative ways," says Tammy Turgeon, director of Sterling Heights Public Library. "From recreational tools to educational aids, the Library of Things is designed to cater to diverse interests and foster a spirit of exploration among our patrons."

How they did it: The Friends of the Sterling Heights Public Library nonprofit organization purchased the items before donating them to the library and its new Library of Things collection.

Foundation laid: The launch of LoT is preceded by previous Sterling Heights Public Library programs that have already made essential and recreational items freely available to the public, including portable Wi-Fi hotspots and bicycles. As Amanda Itria, public relations and programs coordinator for the Sterling Heights Library, told us when the bike rental program first launched in 2022, “We want to expand what people think a library can provide.”

The Sterling Heights Public Library is located at 40255 Dodge Park Rd. in Sterling Heights.

New Bill in Illinois Addresses Threats to Library Workers

Published on 25 January, 2024 | Kelly Jensen

Introduced into the Illinois House January 23 by Representative Anne Stava-Murray and cosponsored by Representative Diane Blair-Sherlock, HB 4567 aims to protect library workers throughout the state from harassment, threats, and disorderly conduct. The bill comes in the new legislative session after the state passed the nation’s first anti-book ban bill last year and dealt with several bomb threats in the months following that bill’s passage. The new bill would amend the Criminal Code of 2012.

The bill summary reads as follows:

Includes in offense of threatening a public official or human service provider, threatening a library employee. Provides that the threat to a public official, human service provider, or library employee includes a threat made electronically or via social media. Defines “library employee”. In the offense of threatening a public official, human service provider, or library employee, includes in the definition of “public official” an employee of any State of Illinois constitutional office, State agency, or the General Assembly. Provides that the offense of disorderly conduct includes transmitting or causing to be transmitted threats or false reports electronically or via social media. Provides that disorderly conduct includes the knowing transmission of or causing to be transmitted in any manner, including electronically or via social media, a lewd, lascivious, indecent, or obscene message to a public official. Provides that making a terrorist threat or falsely making a terrorist threat includes making a terrorist... threat or falsely making a terrorist threat by any means of communication, including electronically or via social media. Makes other changes.

Where once library workers were not explicitly named among populations protected from threats, the new bill would include the profession by name. The threats would be investigated and taken seriously, whether they came in person or through electronic means, including social media.

Not only does naming library workers in the Criminal Code lend legitimacy to the profession—and it covers everyone within a library from professional librarians to shelvers, custodians, and others—it codifies the importance of libraries to democracy in the state. Protections would extend beyond public library workers, too. It also covers those working for private libraries.

Amending the code to include threats transmitted via electronic means and social media legitimizes the current landscape of threats specifically targeting public employees as well. Bomb threats sent through email to a library, for example, would be considered a Class 1 felony. The current Code does not include threats received online.

Stava-Murray represents Illinois’s 81st district, which includes Downers Grove, as well as parts of Lisle, Naperville, Woodridge, Darien, Westmont, and Bolingbrook. Downers Grove was among the libraries targeted by protesters and threats over a teen drag queen bingo event in fall 2022. Other public libraries in the district have been subject to similar threats and harassment. Diane Blair-Sherlock represents the 46th district, which includes all or parts of Addison, Oak Brook Terrace, Carol Stream, Glen Ellyn, Elmhurst, Villa Park, and more. Several of those libraries, including Addison, were subject to bomb threats last fall.

Illinois residents are encouraged to reach out to their representatives in support of the changes. The bill has not moved to committee yet, but when it does, take the time to also file a witness slip as a proponent of the bill.
Books and looks: gen Z is ‘rediscovering’ the public library

Young people are using the hallowed institutions at higher rates than older generations. And they're not just there to read

Published on 26 January, 2024 | Alaina Demopoulos

Henry Earls dresses up to go to the library. He’ll plan outfits after searching “dark academic” on Pinterest, taking inspiration from the internet subculture obsessed with higher education and literature. He picks out cozy knitted sweaters and accessorizes with well-worn copies of classic books. Earls looks like an adjunct English professor – or an extra in Saltburn.

“I want to cultivate an aesthetic when I go to the library,” the 20-year-old Cooper Union art student said. “And, honestly, I dress up to see if someone will come up to me and say hi.”

When Earls isn’t studying at the New York Public Library, he cruises the reading room for friends – or more than friends. Last week, he (respectfully) slipped his number to a young woman sitting near him, which led to a flirty text exchange. A few days ago, he made a friend on the library steps, a law student prepping for an exam.

“We met in an environment that supports focus and growth, so we hit it off,” Earls said. “He might come hang out with my friends and me sometime.”

Gen Z seems to love public libraries. A November report from the American Library Association (ALA) drawing from ethnographic research and a 2022 survey found that gen Z and millennials are using public libraries, both in person and digitally, at higher rates than older generations.

More than half of the survey’s 2,075 respondents had visited a physical library within the past 12 months. Not all of them were bookworms:

according to the report, 43% of gen Z and millennials don’t identify as readers – but about half of those non-readers still visited their local library in the past year. Black gen Zers and millennials visit libraries at particularly high rates.
Libraries have never been just about books. These are community hubs, places to connect and discover. For an extremely online generation that’s nearly synonymous with the so-called “loneliness epidemic”, libraries are increasingly social spaces, too.

“We traditionally think of libraries as very quiet, and parts of them are, but what we observed watching gen Z in libraries is that there are some really great spaces for teens, big rooms where they can do things like gaming or making their own music,” said Rachel Noorda, a co-author of the ALA report. “It’s a place to be solitary, but also a place to build community.”

And a place to flex. On TikTok, Earls posts selfie videos showing him studying, journaling or reading in front of the Bryant Park library’s breathtaking beaux-arts backdrop. The clips get millions of views. “I think people my age are craving something more authentic, and looking for something that’s real,” Earls said. “What’s more real than books and physical material?”

Library-related content does well on #booktok, where young literary influencers – many of them still in high school – drive sales by recommending and reviewing stories. (Colleen Hoover, #booktok’s favorite author, shot to the top of bestseller lists due to viral endorsements; other recommended books often fall into the “romantasy” young adult category.)

“A lot of my followers find libraries appealing in an aesthetic way,” said Marwa Medjahed, an 18-year-old TikToker who posts about life as a George Washington University freshman to her 115,000 followers. “They feel like I’m enjoying studying, rather than being in a bleak dorm room with harsh lighting.”

While many young people read digitally, downloading (or pirating) titles, hard copies of books are fetishized on social media. “Ebooks don’t make good props on TikTok,” Kathi Inman Berens, co-author of the ALA report, said. “You need book materiality, a printed book, something that helps visually.” Why buy the title when you can just borrow it at the library?

Tom Worcester, 28, is one of the co-founders of Reading Rhythms, a New York-based “reading party” held at bars. Attendees pay $20 to cozy up with their books while DJs play ambient tracks in the background. Guests can mingle in between sets. The events are held twice weekly, but that doesn’t stop Worcester from going to real libraries, too. “If I know I have a good four-hour block of time to myself, I’ll ask a bunch of friends, ‘Do you want to go to the library today?’” he said. “I make it a social event.”

At the end of last year, Worcester and a friend took a trip to Amsterdam, where they visited the Openbare Bibliotheek. Inside the second-largest library in Europe, the pair conducted personal “annual reviews”, spending hours reflecting on the highs and lows of their year. “When you’re at the library, there’s an unspoken agreement that you will focus on what you have to do,” he said.

Talk to any young and online person long enough about libraries and they’ll inevitably bring up the “third place”, a term coined in 1989 by the urban sociologist Ray Oldenburg. Like attachment styles or imposter syndrome, the third place is an academic term turned social media discourse point. Separate from home and work, it is a space for gathering and socialization. Bars, coffee shops, churches and libraries are the usual examples.

Gen Z’s well aware that they lack many of the third places their parents had, especially as the lines between work and home blurred during Covid. Libraries are the last place they feel exists that asks nothing of them. You can truly come as you are.

“Coffee shops get so crowded, and you have to spend money to be there, but libraries are open for everyone,” said Anika Neumeyer, a 19-year-old English student who volunteers at the Seattle Public Library. “There’s a lot less pressure to be doing something in the public library. No one’s going to judge you.”

In 2018, the librarian and academic Fobazi Ettarh coined the term “vocational awe”. It describes the idea that libraries are “inherently good” and “beyond critique”, which can lead to the exploitation of their workers. Abby Hargreaves, a librarian in the Washington DC area who posts about her job to 48,000 TikTok followers, believes gen Z has a tendency to romanticize the position.

“There’s this idea of ‘I’ll go to my library and have some great adventure while I’m there,’” Hargreaves said. “But then we also see people who are looking to tear libraries down, whether that’s through budget cuts or legislated book bans.”

If gen Z is going to save libraries, they couldn’t pick a better time to advocate for them: across the country, these institutions and their workers are under attack. Last year, Mayor Eric Adams of New York City slashed funding to public libraries, cutting Sunday service in the five boroughs – and drawing the ire of Cardi B, who went on an Instagram Live tirade over the news.

A series of library-related bills are making their way through Idaho’s legislature that would restrict material it deems inappropriate for minors and allow family members to file $2,500 lawsuits against libraries that violate the law. Last year, Missouri Republicans attempted to strip all state funding from public libraries. This week, Chaya Raichik, the rightwing influencer behind Libs of Tiktok, was appointed to a library advisory position for Oklahoma’s schools, which means she could help determine what books are “appropriate” for students.

Meanwhile, school librarians in states across the country report enduring harassment – and for some, death threats – by rightwing trolls just for doing their jobs.

“It’s so strange when you hear ‘Oh, gen Z loves libraries,’ or when the algorithm keeps feeding you videos of beautiful libraries, but then there’s no more Sunday service and you have to wait weeks for your book to come,” said Anna Murphy, an upper school librarian at the Berkeley Carroll School in Brooklyn. “The library love and hate seems to exist in two different universes.”

Emily Drabinski, president of the ALA, reminds us that the vast majority of US voters oppose book bans and hold librarians in “high regard”. “Most people love the library, especially after 50 years of systematic disinvestment of public institutions, since it’s the only one left standing,” she said.
Arlo Platt Zolov is a 15-year-old who lives in Brooklyn and has what must be one of the all-time-best after-school jobs: running the information desk at the central branch of the public library, steps away from Prospect Park. “A lot of people my age are surrounded by tech and everything’s moving so quickly,” he said. “Part of me thinks we’re rediscovering libraries not as something new, but for what they’ve always been: a shared space of comfort.”
At a time when public libraries are threatened by funding cuts and even book bans, librarian Mychal Threets sings their praises with infectious enthusiasm. Everyone belongs in a library, he says, and a library card can unlock a world of magic and possibility.

“My child is a reluctant reader but finds butts to be hilarious. Any recommendations?”

Mychal Threets gets questions like that a lot. By day, the 33-year-old is a supervising librarian at the Fairfield Civic Center Library in California, US. But under the gaze of the smartphone lens, Threets becomes a superhero.

Not your usual tight pants or billowing-cape type. To his 600,000-plus followers on Instagram and almost 700,000 on TikTok, @mychal3ts is an ordinary man with extraordinary powers. From his first-rate reading recommendations to his sheer passion for advocating libraries as a tonic for a whole host of challenges.
"I was a shy, reserved kid," explains Threets. "Books were my first friend."

Indeed, he has a list of his favourite books that’s as long as his arm. Literally: he has tattooed book covers on his biceps and forearms of Where the Wild Things Are, The Busy World of Richard Scarry, and Alice in Wonderland.

So how did Threets go from being a home-schooled kid to helping a generation of children rediscover the pleasures of the library? "I’ve been in love with libraries ever since I was three years old,” he beams via video call. “[But] I thought I was going to be an astronaut or an athlete. Librarian was never, ever on my radar.”

Funding cuts threaten many libraries in the US and beyond. Image: Ying Ge Instead, he "kind of stumbled" into the role. He got chatting one day to a member of staff on the desk at the Fairfield Cordelia Library, and asked how she got to work there. She explained, he applied for a position, got the job, and has worked at the library ever since.

“When people talk about equity, diversity and inclusion, they always forget how important belonging is in that conversation,” says Threets. “Libraries are all about belonging. If you’re mentally ill, if you’re unhoused, if you’re a ‘library kid’, if you’re a teen, if you’re a grown-up, if you’re a single person, you have a spot in the library.”

When he first took to Facebook to write about the interactions he’d had with kids in libraries, he got a few likes. Then he switched to videos on TikTok and Instagram and his audience ballooned. These days he answers questions from kids, does funny skits and generally bigs up the library system whenever he can.

‘I was a shy, reserved kid. Books were my first friend,’ says Threets. Image: Gabrielle Lurie

“If someone tried to create the public library today, it would not get approved,” believes Threets. “People would be against it because there’s no monetary gain.” (The theory chimes with that of author Neil Gaiman, who wrote that in modern life “libraries are one of the few places you are allowed to exist without the expectation of spending money”.

Yet for many, they’re essential. Libraries offer books but frequently also films, musical instruments, board games, video games, and resources such as access to lawyers or help with tax. That’s not to mention the access to computers, e-books, audiobooks and databases. “There’s something for everybody – that’s the joy,” explains Threets.

Still, in some parts of the US, libraries are coming under pressure to ban certain books. How does that make him feel? “I will never understand why people want books to be banned,” Threets says. “They think that these books by authors of colour are trying to indoctrinate their kids. They’re trying to make kids feel guilty about an LGBTQIA+ agenda when there is no agenda.”

Libraries are all about belonging. If you’re mentally ill, if you’re unhoused, if you’re a teen, if you’re a grown-up, you have a spot in the library.

As a person of colour, Threets says he didn’t grow up with a lot of books written by people like him or about people like him. “Kids want to feel seen in books,” he says. “They want to see their friends. They want to see their family.”

Such authors deserve to tell their stories, he believes strongly. Whether it’s highlighting great authors for kids of all backgrounds or openly talking about mental health online, his social media presence lends the library a renewed importance in today’s screen-first world.

A love of books has been reignited in a lot of grown-ups even, via his posts, Threets explains. “They’re like: ‘Oh, you reminded me of books I loved as a kid.’”

After all, as Threets’ Instagram bio reads: “Having fun isn’t hard, when you’ve got a library card.

The controversy surrounding book bans and censorship has taken center stage in the United States since the November 2021 elections in Virginia and Texas. The issue of "parents' rights" has dominated the political and social discussions about book bans and censorship, with numerous pro-censorship groups claiming “parental concerns” about book themes, topics, and characters as their authority as justification for book bans and censorship. To better understand if the attitudes of American parents and guardians toward book bans, censorship, and library practices line up with these special interest groups’ rhetoric, we conducted an extensive survey of parents and guardians of children under 18 across the United States.

The survey aimed to uncover the truth about the current political and social moment for libraries and librarians and to provide a more nuanced understanding of public opinion that might not be represented in mainstream media or political rhetoric. We asked parents and guardians across America about their attitudes about school libraries and public libraries, school librarians and librarians in public libraries, and their comfort with sensitive content. The survey results provide valuable insights into the concerns and priorities of parents regarding their children's education and access to information.

The survey findings indicate that most American parents are opposed to book bans and censorship. They value the expertise of librarians and believe that these professionals play an important role in helping children navigate sensitive content. Furthermore, the survey results highlight the importance of parental involvement in children's reading and education. Most parents believe that they should have the final say in what their children read and should be involved in the selection of books for school and public libraries.
The survey also revealed societal divisions on how to handle sensitive topics in literature and education settings. While some parents believe that books containing sensitive content should be banned entirely from libraries, and others believe that they should be available with appropriate age ratings or parental guidance, many parents are not uncomfortable with these themes. They would allow their children access at any age. The nuanced responses underscore the complexity of public opinion compared to the more polarized views often presented by so-called parents' rights groups.

The survey results have important implications for policymakers, educators, librarians, and the public. The survey can inform librarians in curating content and creating policies that align with community values and expectations. The results can also inform policymakers and educators in making decisions that reflect the actual views of parents rather than those of special interest groups. Sharing the results can contribute to a more informed discussion among the general public about the role of libraries and the nature of censorship.
During the fall of 2023, EveryLibrary Institute and Book Riot partnered on a series of three surveys asking parents and guardians about their perceptions of public libraries, school libraries, and the library profession.

The surveys were conducted through Survey Monkey, and responses were collected via paid Survey Monkey collectors. Each survey began with a qualifying question asking respondents if they were the parents or legal guardians of a child under 18. Percentages in this report have been rounded down to the nearest whole number.

The "Parents Perception of Public Libraries and Book Bans" was conducted in September 2023. It gathered insights from 1,063 parents and guardians with children under 18 about their experiences and opinions about book bans, their trust in public libraries, and their understanding of librarians' book selection process.

The "Parents' Perception of School Libraries and Librarians" survey was conducted in November 2023. It gathered insights from 616 parents and guardians with children under 18 to understand their perceptions of school librarians, book bans, access to school libraries, and the involvement of parents in their children's reading choices.

EveryLibrary Institute and Book Riot also surveyed parents about how they perceived the trustworthiness of librarians as a profession. The “Parent Perceptions of Librarians” survey was conducted in October 2023 and surveyed 1,527 parents and guardians with children under 18– 1,004 in a survey asking them about their attitudes toward and characteristics of librarians, and 523 in a survey asking them to rank the trustworthiness of librarians and compare them to other professions.
- 85% of respondents say they trust librarians.*
- 58% of parents think public librarians should be primarily responsible for what books are selected for the public library as opposed to elected officials, library boards, or parent groups.*
- 92% of respondents say libraries are safe spaces for their children.*
- 75% of respondents do not believe their libraries are experiencing book bans.*
- 67% of respondents feel that book bans infringe on their rights to make decisions for their children.*
- 75% of respondents report that neither they nor their child have checked out a book from the library that they felt was inappropriate.*
- 63% of respondents agree or somewhat agree that “banning books is a waste of time” at the public library.
- 57% of respondents say banning books from the school library is an appropriate way to prevent children from learning about certain topics.
- 80% of respondents agree that “school libraries should have content rating systems.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

The surveys found that the majority of respondents trust librarians and want librarians to continue to have the power to select books for their libraries; they view libraries as safe places for their children, and have not personally encountered inappropriate library books or experienced a book ban in their community. They feel book bans infringe on their rights as a parent. These findings are discussed in greater detail in the section called “Library Experiences.”

The findings support librarians’ role as trusted sources of information. Librarians, alongside healthcare providers and educators, are considered one of the most trustworthy professions. A majority (56%) believe that librarians are and should be non-political. These findings are discussed in greater detail in the section called “Opinions About Library Professionals.”

There is overwhelming support for the need for school librarians. More than 9 out of 10 respondents endorse having a school librarian in every school regardless of how they answer any other question in the survey. However, respondents have less understanding of school libraries and less trust in school librarians than public librarians. These findings are discussed in greater detail in the sections called “Opinions About Library Professionals” and “Perceptions of the Collection Development Process.”

The level of familiarity with the public library does not correlate with support, however. Respondents who are most willing to see librarians jailed and books banned are, paradoxically, also more likely to have signed their child up for a library card. Surprisingly, respondents most comfortable with the idea of librarians being prosecuted were more likely to say that librarians should be given primary say in collection development decisions. These findings are discussed in greater detail in the section called “Insights into Respondent Attitudes.”
Parents are deeply divided about book bans and the nature of library collections and do not feel that they have an understanding of how books are selected for libraries. There are striking levels of discomfort around children’s books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes as opposed to children’s books about sexual education, social justice, and race or racism. Results show that parents favor increased oversight and restriction in school libraries. These findings are outlined in the sections called “Comfort with Children's Book Contents” and “Attitudes Toward Book Access.”
Opinions About Library Professionals

Parents almost unanimously agree that schools should have a school librarian on staff. A smaller though still overwhelming percentage believe that school librarians are trustworthy as professionals. While public librarians are slightly more trusted than school librarians, both are highly trusted.

- 91% of parents and guardians say that they trust public librarians and trust them to curate appropriate books and materials.
- 80% of parents and guardians say that they trust school librarians. 95% believe that every school should have a school librarian. 82% of parents trust school librarians to recommend age and content-appropriate books and materials to students.

Parents have a high level of trust in school and public librarians compared to similar professions. Librarians, alongside healthcare providers and educators, rank as the most trustworthy professions, with public librarians ranking as most trustworthy followed by doctors, school librarians, teachers, and nurses. Librarians are approachable to many respondents, well-known in the community, and advocates for lifelong learning. Most agree that they are experts at connecting people to their needs.

- 69% agree that a librarian is someone they can relate to.
- 53% agree that the librarian is well-known in the community.
- 85% agree that librarians support children's learning.
- 70% agree that librarians understand their community's needs.
- 77% agree that librarians make the library a place for fun and creativity.
- 78% agree that librarians are true advocates for lifelong learning.
- 77% agree that librarians are friendly and approachable.
• 75% agree that librarians are experts at connecting people to what they need.
• 83% agree that librarians know what books children would love.
• 67% agree that librarians are knowledgeable about their community.

When asked whether they think public librarians have a political agenda and if they should have one, parents appear to have mixed opinions. 35% of them believe that librarians have a political agenda and that they should. On the other hand, only 9% of parents feel that librarians do not have a political agenda but should have one. 12% of parents think that librarians have a political agenda but should not have one. The largest grouping of respondents, accounting for 44%, do not believe that librarians have a political agenda, nor do they think they should have one. Therefore, 79% of parents feel that librarians are doing what they should be doing, whether that means having a political agenda or not.

Perceptions of the Collection Development Process

Fewer than half of parents feel that they know how book selection for libraries works. Over twice as many parents know how books are chosen for the public library compared to how many know how books are chosen for the school library.

• 47% of parents and guardians say they know how public librarians decide what books should be in a public library collection.
• 19% of parents and guardians say they know how school librarians decide what books should be in a library collection.
Attitudes Toward Book Access

Opinions on the “effectiveness” of book bans are mixed. Most parents believe that book bans are ineffective in public libraries and infringe on their parental rights in any library. Additionally, many feel that book bans in school libraries can do more harm than good. Paradoxically, a majority also believes banning books from school libraries is acceptable for preventing children from being exposed to certain topics.

Despite support for book bans, only a minority of parents are experiencing or engaging with them firsthand.

- 40% of parents reported book ban activity in their community's public library in the past year.
- 33% of parents are aware of books being banned in their child’s school library in the past year.
- 23% said that no books had been banned from a school library in their community.
- 63% of respondents agree or somewhat agree that “banning books is a waste of time” at the public library.
- 57% of respondents to the school library survey say banning books from the school library is an appropriate way to prevent children from learning about certain topics.
- 73% agree or somewhat agree that book bans at public libraries infringe on their right to make decisions for their children, and 62% agree that book bans from school libraries infringe on their right to make decisions for their children.
- 54% of parents agree that book bans in school libraries cause harm.

When asked about their opinion on book rating systems, most parents believe that school libraries should have content rating systems based on the age-appropriateness of the content, similar to the rating systems used for movies, TV shows, or video games.
Half of the parents who responded to the survey agreed that school libraries should only contain books appropriate for every age group in the school (i.e., the youngest and most sensitive readers). Two-thirds think the school website should list every book available in the library. A majority also believe in proactive parental involvement, like being notified when their child checks out a book, or having the option to opt their children out of using the school library altogether. These results show that parents favor increased oversight and restriction in school libraries.

- 80% of respondents agree that "school libraries should have content rating systems based on their appropriateness for different age groups or contents, similar to the rating systems used for movies, TV shows, or video games."
- 50% agree that "school libraries should only contain books appropriate for every age group in the school."
- 67% think that the school website should have a list of every book in the school library.
Library Experiences

An average of 92% of parents agree that libraries are safe places for their children. Respondents were more likely to report that they or their child had found or checked out a book they considered inappropriate at the public library than at the school library. This is interesting because a smaller percentage of respondents believe that school librarians are trustworthy professionals.

Parents are more than twice as likely to know how books are selected in public libraries than in school libraries. As stated above, a majority also feel that banning books from the school library is an appropriate way to prevent children from learning about certain topics. This stands out because respondents reported lower levels of trust in school librarians, lower understanding of how school library collections are developed, and more willingness to see book bans in schools. However, there are more self-reported instances of respondents encountering books that troubled them and their children in public libraries than in school libraries.

- 65% of respondents said ‘no’ when asked if a book that their child checked out from the public library made them (the parent) uncomfortable; 67% said ‘no’ when asked if their child has themself ever been uncomfortable with a book they checked out from the public library.
- 86% of respondents said ‘no’ when asked if a book that their child checked out for the school library made them (the parent) uncomfortable; 85% said ‘no’ when asked if their child has ever been uncomfortable with a book they checked out from the school library.
- 92% of all respondents say they feel their child/children are safe at the public library.
- 93% of all respondents say they feel their child/children are safe at the school library.
Comfort with Children’s Book Contents

Parents surveyed about materials at public libraries are least comfortable with children’s books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes. They are most likely to consider children’s books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes to be harmful to children. Parents are most comfortable with children’s books about social justice in public libraries and are least likely to consider children’s books about social justice to be harmful to children. Parents are significantly more comfortable with children’s books about puberty and sexual education than they are with children’s books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes. See Appendix B for responses in full.

“In general, does having access to books with the following themes have a positive, negative, or neutral impact on children?”
Table 2: Parental attitudes about books in public libraries.

“At what age should children up to the age of 18 begin to have access to LGBTQ+ characters and themes in children’s books?” See Appendix B for responses in full.
Table 3: Parental attitudes about books in public libraries.
“On a scale of "Very comfortable" to "Not comfortable," how comfortable are you with the following themes in children's books?”

Parents surveyed about materials in school libraries are least comfortable with children's books featuring LGBTQ+ characters and themes and are most likely to say that books with LGBTQ+ characters should never be available to anyone of any age. Parents are less comfortable with children's books with children's books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes at the school library than the public library. These echo the findings of the public libraries survey.

Parents are most comfortable with children's books about social justice and are least likely to say that children's books about puberty and sexual education should never be available to any age. These also echo the findings of the public libraries survey.
Parents are much more comfortable with children's books about puberty and sexual education than they are with children's books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes. This clashes with the narrative that children's books with LGBTQ+ characters and themes are inherently sexual and should be banned on these grounds. There is more comfort with books that are about sex than books that are considered to be inherently about sex because they have LGBTQ+ themes or characters.

Republican Respondent Attitudes

The issue of book bans vs. open access has been politicized by special interest groups, political actors, and issue-advocacy organizations across the political spectrum. Groups like Moms for Liberty and MoveOn both use book bans as a way to identify and cultivate new supporters for their broader social and political issues. It is, therefore, important to understand if there are similarities or differences between political perspectives and how those perspectives can manifest in public policy issues.

Toward School Libraries
The survey asked respondents to self-identify as either Republican (24%), Democrat (27%), Independent (26%), or not aligned (18%) and other (3%). In order to understand the political landscape behind libraries and book bans as a social issue, we ran comparative cross-tabs for self-identified Republican and Democrat parents and guardians; their political identities are evident in the responses.

When discussing school libraries, compared to the overall pool of respondents, Republican parents are less likely to say that book banning is an important issue when they vote. Interestingly, they trust school librarians to recommend age and content-appropriate books to their children.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, Republican parents are more likely to say that people of any age should “never” have access to age-appropriate books with LGBTQ+ characters, say that parents should receive a notification about everything their child checks out at the school library, and say parents should be able to sign a form indicating that their child cannot access the school library.
Republican parents favor control and restriction more but are less motivated to act on their opinions about book bans at the polls than the general pool of respondents.

Toward Public Libraries

The survey asked respondents to self-identify as either Republican (29%), Democrat (36%), Independent (20%), or not aligned (13%). In order to understand the political landscape behind libraries and book bans as a social issue, we ran comparative cross-tabs for self-identified Republican and Democrat parents and guardians.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents when discussing public libraries, Republican parents are slightly less likely to feel their child is safe at the library. They also say that librarians should be primarily responsible for which books are available for checkout at the library.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, Republican parents are more likely to have a child with a library card and firmly agree that book banning is the right way to prevent children from seeing something inappropriate.

Republican parents are similar to the overall pool of respondents in library usage, report that they are “extremely aware” or very aware” of book bans and censorship in public libraries and school libraries around the United States over the past three years, and say that parent groups should be primarily responsible for which books are available for check out at the library.

Republican parents favor book bans and parent groups controlling what is available at the public library. The fact that they are slightly more likely to have a child with a library card than the general pool of respondents while being less likely to say that their child is safe at the library stands out.
Democrat Respondent Attitudes

Toward School Libraries
When discussing school libraries, compared to the overall pool of respondents, Democrat parents are less likely to say that people of any age should “never” have access to age-appropriate books with LGBTQ+ characters in school libraries, say that parents should receive a notification about everything their child checks out at the school library, and say that parents should be able to sign a form indicating that their child cannot access the school library.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, Democrat parents are more likely to say that book banning is an important issue when they vote, say they are comfortable with LGBTQ+ characters and themes in children’s books, and trust school librarians.

Democrat parents were less in favor of control and restriction and more motivated to act on their opinions about book bans at the polls than the general pool of respondents.

Toward Public Libraries
Compared to the overall pool of respondents, Democrat parents, when discussing public libraries, are less likely to firmly agree that book banning is the right way to prevent children from seeing something inappropriate or that parent groups should be primarily responsible for selecting books for the public library.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, Democrat parents are more likely to be library users, have a child with a library card, feel their child is safe at the library, and are significantly more likely to report that they are “extremely aware” or “very aware” of book bans and censorship in public libraries and school libraries around the United States over the past three years. They are more likely to say that librarians should be primarily responsible for selecting books for the public library. Democrat parents are similar to the overall pool of respondents in library usage.
People Who Support Prosecuting School Librarians

16% of respondents said "I agree" to the statement "school librarians should be prosecuted for giving children access to certain books."
The subset of respondents comfortable with prosecuting librarians will be referred to as "pro-prosecution respondents" going forward.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, pro-prosecution respondents are less likely to be white or Democrat, have a child in public school, attend school board meetings, trust librarians, and feel their child is safe in the school library.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, pro-prosecution respondents are more likely to be Republican, say they know how books are selected for the school library, say that a school library should restrict access to certain books based on a child's age or require parental permission to check out certain books, say that they are not comfortable with LGBTQ+ characters and themes in children's books, say that parents should receive a notification about everything their child checks out at the school library, say that parents should sign a form before their child can access the school library, and say that they or their child has checked out a book that they considered inappropriate.

Pro-prosecution respondents are similar to the overall pool of respondents in their likelihood to consider book banning an essential issue when voting.

Pro-prosecution respondents display a mistrust of librarians and libraries in their survey responses. They are also more likely to have had an incident of discomfort with a book their child checked out from a school library. They have less exposure to how the school library works since they are less likely to have a child in public schools or attend school board meetings. Despite the smaller likelihood that they have recent first-hand experiences with school libraries and school board meetings, they feel significantly more confident than the overall pool of respondents that they know how books are selected for the school library.
Laws that protect minors from harmful materials are in force in all 50 states. These laws prevent children from viewing material that is considered obscene and is not protected under the First Amendment. Even with strict laws in place to prevent children from exposure to harmful materials, lawmakers in 15 states in 2023 filed bills during the 2023 legislative session that would change obscenity laws to allow for the prosecution of librarians and educators about the books on their shelves. These bills put librarians and educators in a dangerous position. Two bills passed, with one being invalidated in court and one now in force in Indiana.

Because the current social and political climate has become so willing to consider criminal charges against librarians over books, we asked parents in the survey about their level of agreement with the concept of prosecuting librarians for giving children access to certain books through the library. The results are shocking. One-quarter of respondents said "I agree" with the statement "librarians should be prosecuted for giving children access to certain books." 23% said they somewhat agree. 9% were unsure.

Because of the prevalence of a “pro-prosecution” attitude among parents, we are focusing this section of the report on their answers. Compared to the overall pool of respondents, pro-prosecution respondents are much closer in their attitudes to the general pool of participants than those who were comfortable with jail time for school librarians. The variations between the two pools were less pronounced in this survey than the survey examining attitudes toward school librarians. Compared to the overall pool of respondents, pro-prosecution respondents are less likely to be Democrats (though not significantly) and have a child in public school.

Compared to the overall pool of respondents, pro-prosecution respondents are more likely to be Republican, say that book banning is an important issue when they vote, have a child with a library card, say that a book that their child checked out for the public library made them (the parent) or their child uncomfortable, say that people of any age should "never" have access to LGBTQ+ characters and themes in children's books, feel that book banning is the right way to prevent children from seeing something inappropriate, and report that they are "extremely aware" or very aware" of book bans and censorship in public libraries and school libraries around the United States over the past three years.

Strikingly, when asked, "Who should be primarily responsible for deciding which books should be available for checkout in a public library? (Check all that apply)" 60% of pro-prosecution respondents said that librarians should be primarily responsible for which books are available for check out at the library (58% of overall respondents for this survey stated this). 59% of pro-prosecution respondents said that parent groups should be primarily responsible for which books are available for checkout at the library (53% of overall). It stands out that pro-prosecution respondents are slightly more likely to say that librarians should be primarily responsible for selecting items for the library than parent groups.

Pro-prosecution respondents are similar to the overall pool of respondents in reporting that they use the public library and feel their child is safe there. The level of familiarity that this group has with the public library is slightly higher than the overall pool of respondents. They report that they use the public library and, interestingly, are more likely to have a child with a library card. The subset that is comfortable with prosecuting public librarians has more exposure to public libraries compared to the respondents overall. Conversely, those comfortable with prosecuting school librarians had less exposure to school libraries than the overall pool. This subset are also more likely to report an incident of discomfort with a book they or their child checked out from a public library.

Pro-prosecution respondents are activated on this issue and more likely to consider book banning an important issue when they vote and report that they are "extremely aware" or "very aware" of book bans and censorship in public libraries. This varies from pro-prosecution respondents for school librarians who were just as activated on this issue as the general pool of responses but not more.
CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

The findings from the survey series reveal conflicting attitudes of American parents and guardians toward book bans, censorship, and library practices. While on the surface, the results of the surveys deliver positive news for librarians and their supporters by showing that most parents trust librarians and believe they should have the power to select books for their libraries, view libraries as safe spaces for their children, and have not encountered inappropriate library books or experienced a book ban in their communities.

A significant majority of respondents view book banning as either a waste of time or an infringement on their rights to make decisions for their children. This suggests a general disapproval of the practice among parents. This fact should inform our sector’s engagement with the media and elected officials as well. Elected officials need to be reminded of how unpopular and unproductive book bans and censorship are viewed by parents and grandparents.

A high percentage of respondents feel that their children are safe at libraries and believe that librarians should primarily be responsible for selecting books in public libraries. However, many are unaware of the criteria librarians use for book selection. It is important for library leaders and pro-library advocacy groups to emphasize this fact. The rhetoric of parental control and parental concern tries to place a wedge between the trust parents have in librarians in schools and public libraries and the parents and families they serve. Part of this trust matrix is to share and explain the collection development and selection process to parents, the media, and policymakers. Without a current understanding of why a book is selected, it is difficult for parents to defend collection decisions when confronted by controversy.

Despite this generally positive framework, we see deep division and troubling trends about what parents want the future of libraries to be. For instance, a surprisingly high number of parents expressed their opinion that library workers should face prosecution, that students in public schools should require parental permission to use the library (so-called opt-in policies), and that librarians should not be responsible for what is available at the public library. These policies will cause a significant shift in how libraries operate if they have the mainstream traction that these surveys reveal they already have.

As a librarian, you have an obligation to uphold the civil rights of all minorities, including LGBTQ+, racial, and religious groups, and ensure their representation in library collections. However, there are times when parents may express discomfort with sensitive topics that they feel are inappropriate for their children to read. In such situations, you must adopt approaches that address these concerns while staying true to your professional commitments and legal obligations.

One approach to address some parents' discomfort with sensitive topics is through education and outreach. You can engage in community education initiatives to explain the importance of diverse books and their role in promoting understanding and empathy. By providing parents with a deeper understanding of the value of diverse books, you can help alleviate their concerns about their children's exposure to sensitive topics.

Another approach is to clearly communicate about the criteria and processes used for selecting books. Explaining the framework of civil rights or public accommodation laws, professional standards, and ethical guidelines can demystify the process and alleviate concerns about arbitrary or biased choices. By providing transparency in the selection process, you can help parents understand the reasons behind the inclusion of certain books in the collection.

Throughout this survey, we have seen how important it is to encourage and support higher levels of parental involvement in their school and public libraries. Librarians should help parents navigate the collection with their children and respect their right to guide their own children's reading while also maintaining a diverse collection. By providing parents with the tools they need to make informed decisions about their children's reading choices, you can help them feel more comfortable with the collection.

Invest in continuous professional development for librarians. This includes discussions with other librarians, library boards, school boards, and elected officials about sensitive materials. Stay informed about the legal and ethical frameworks governing library services, including the rights of minors to access information, is important. This knowledge can be crucial in discussions with parents and policy debates. Working with library boards, educational institutions, and policymakers to advocate for policies that support the inclusion of diverse materials in library collections is another approach that can be taken.

Librarians have a responsibility to counter false narratives about the contents of library collections and the process of book selection. These findings show that the belief that library users are allies is inaccurate. It is not enough to attract people to the library - maintaining parents' trust in schools and public libraries requires more. Librarians and supporters should take an active role in addressing misinformation about libraries in their communities.

Librarians can navigate the complexities of serving a diverse community while staying true to professional commitments and legal obligations. The goal is to create an environment where all patrons feel represented and respected and where uncomfortable topics can be explored in a safe and educational setting.

As of April 2020, this report was renamed “Endowment Funds Portfolio Performance Benchmarks,” instead of “Portfolio Performance Benchmarks.” The new title is more accurate, for it states clearly that the comparison between benchmarks and the Baldwin Trust’s performance pertains only to the BPL Trust Endowment Funds Account at Raymond James. It does not take into account the BPL Trust General Funds Account at Raymond James or the Trust’s Huntington Bank checking and money market accounts. The breakdown of the Trust’s various accounts is shown on the “Balances by Financial Institutions Report,” which follows this report in the Board packet. As of January 31, 2024, the breakdown was as follows:

<tr>

Our Huntington Bank checking account and money market account have no stock or bond investments at all, and are non-volatile. All of the funds donated for the Library’s Youth Room expansion and renovation are in our Huntington Bank money market account and are therefore safe from market fluctuation.
